Nine years of Extending
Support and Assistance

Editorial

The For Human Development Foundation (FHD) contributes to the achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals declared by the United Nations and international organizations operating in Yemen.

The FHD alleviates the humanitarian calamity that our country has been experiencing for almost a decade and provides assistance to tens of thousands of people in need through the many different programs, projects, and services it executes alongside its donor partners.

During 2023, the FHD endeavored to execute numerous initiatives that addressed the most pressing humanitarian requirements in its areas of focus. These initiatives encompassed food security, access to high-quality education, good health, combating climate change, child-friendly environments, protection and shelter programs, and economic empowerment to train and support the most vulnerable families in society. These services, programs, and activities are merely the highlights of what the FHD is and has accomplished within these areas over the course of 2023.

The report's reader will be able to discern from the details just how far the FHD has progressed in the development of the communities it has targeted, as well as the quality and viability of the services and interventions that reached a total of 111,206 thousand people in the course of the year.

We are pleased here to extend our thanks and appreciation to all our valued partners mainly local authorities, regional and international donors for their kind and fruitful humanitarian efforts.

We also express our gratitude to all of the FHD's staff members and volunteers for their unwavering commitment to working hard, putting forth excellent work, and being eager to accomplish the organization's objectives. We want to emphasize that we are committed to continuing to support vulnerable populations and broadening the range of interventions and services we offer in order to serve as many beneficiaries in vulnerable communities as we can.

Programme Overview

As the country navigates an emergency, one of the most crucial areas the FHD focuses on is protection projects. These projects improve the lives of women, girls, children, and their affected families while also helping to protect them from abuse, neglect, exploitation, and violence. They do this by offering a range of therapeutic and preventive interventions to the most vulnerable groups, including hosting families and internally displaced people.

About the program

According to reports from United Nations organizations, Yemen has one of the worst food security situations in the world. Given the instability of humanitarian aid in the country and the ongoing economic crisis, which is getting worse every day, the numbers of people with food insecurity are likely to rise. For Human Development Foundation (FHD) has worked therefore with local, regional, and international organizations to prevent .the crisis from further exacerbation

Camps and shelter management

About the Programme

Due to the prolonged fighting, hundreds of thousands of people have been facing difficult humanitarian condition after being forced to leave their homes battling poverty and many other challenges that worsen over time. Many of these displaced families are compelled to live in camps with few necessities suffering the bitter cold and a lack of clothing. Statistics show that the situation surrounding the displaced people is terrible, as a result of the destruction to all basic services. Hence, the FHD is aware of the risks that the IDP people are confronting and has thus undertaken some shelter activities, given their considerable relevance.

Zainab's Success Story

My name is Zainab Ahmed. I am 34 years old, displaced from Al-Durayhimi District, Hodeidah Governorate. My family were forcibly displaced due to the ongoing conflict in the country. My husband and kids had to flee during the night due to the intensity of bombing and intense heat during the day. We left everything behind us and had nowhere to go. Our only concern was to survive the shelling that threatened our lives.

At last, we found ourselves in Al-Jisha camp in a dilapidated house in the city of Al-Khawkha, where it is impossible to be fit for human habitation, but it is the compelling circumstances that force us to accept the bitter reality.

I wished to die and hated life. My husband became jobless and my health worsened due to the conditions I went through recently. One day, I learned that there is a safe space for women and girls close to my place of residence and that this space provides multiple services, including free courses that help us to live a decent life. So, I went the next day to register in this space funded by the United Nations Fund. I was introduced to the services and had my condition assessed and was referred to a female psychologist. After session with this psychologist, I felt that she is close to me and understood my pain. Followingly, I joined the handbag crafting course. When I started this training, I felt so happy, as learning to craft bags was my dream since I was kid, but circumstances were not supportive.

I hope this Space lasts as long as possible and I hope it would target many other women who suffer as same as me.

The success story of Mohammed and Somaya

I am Mohammed Qaed, and my wife Somaya works as a teacher at the 22-May School in the Hays District, Hodeidah Governorate. Because of the ongoing conflict and the non-payment of our salaries, life has become difficult for us. In 2018, we were forced to relocate and leave our home and place of employment because of our unpaid salaries, which made our daily lives bitter and worsened our mental health. This was especially true when we discovered that our children's school documents were left in the school where they were receiving education, and that we were unable to retrieve their educational documentation because the school had become a military barracks. As a result, my children accordingly were unable to enroll in school in our area of displacement and were deprived of education for 5 years.

At the beginning of 2023 and the start of the new semester, the educational process began to resume in some schools, but some schools did not as the teachers could afford transportation costs to reach these schools, including the 22-May School. However, with the intervention from the project of “Enhancing the educational environment for vulnerable groups” funded by the Yemen Humanitarian Fund and implemented by the For Human Development Foundation, many teachers began to return to school, many volunteers joined, and many students came back. The 22-May school became one of the model schools in the area as it embracing 960 students, according to the latest students’ lists.

When this project intervened, it started renovating the school, paying many teachers and volunteers monthly incentives, providing school bags to students, offering recreational activities to children, so to help in educating children. This had a very positive impact on my wife, me, and the kids, eliminating the negative mental effects left by the conflict in the past. We also recommend that these projects continue because they have a significant positive impact on the psychological and moral aspects of education, prevent students from dropping out, and raise awareness among the community.
