The FHD has been dedicated to assisting the most underprivileged individuals, both in rural and urban areas, since its founding through development projects that seek to enhance living conditions, increase public awareness, and fortify disaster resilience.

FHD's initiatives are more than just emergency responses; they are strategic moves toward building a more resilient society capable of facing challenges and embarking on a brighter future. All of these activities, from funding education projects to providing health care, livelihood interventions, economic empowerment, and protection programmes, embody the FHD's objective of achieving long-term development that directly better Yemenis' lives.

This Annual Report highlights the tremendous impact the FHD has on the lives of its beneficiaries and the unwavering efforts made to promote a culture of development and charitable support. We believe that real change comes from genuine initiatives and teamwork, and that continued work and cooperation create hope.

Camp and Shelter Management Projects

The Programme contributed to the achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals

About the programme

The continued conflict has made housing displaced persons in difficult humanitarian situations a top concern for FHD. After being compelled to live in camps without even the most basic amenities, hundreds of thousands of families are left vulnerable to the extreme weather and lack of clothes, which further exacerbates their suffering. In accordance with its humanitarian mission, the FHD conducted a variety of shelter-related interventions, including offering safe shelters and distributing relief items like clothing and blankets, in an effort to alleviate the suffering of IDP families and enhance their living standard.

Relief Project for Flood-Affected People

To help those affected by the floods and rainfall in the Hodeidah Governorate, the FHD started a relief operation. In addition to improving living conditions and helping affected families rebuild their lives, this initiative, which is a part of the FHD's efforts to lessen the suffering of the community's most vulnerable groups, aims to provide them with immediate and comprehensive support by distributing blankets, mats, kitchen utensils, and integrated shelter baskets.
